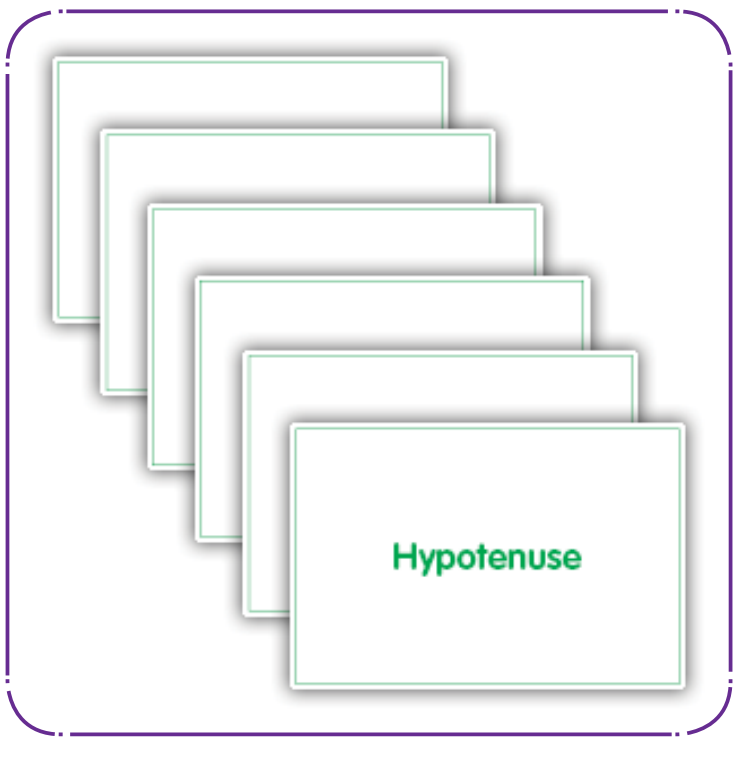
A Learning Challenge – Twenty Questions



Your challenge is to …

Work out what is written on a card
by asking questions.

Each object is ambiguous so you will find that you get stuck. The purpose of the exercise is to deepen your questioning skills.

- Place the cards face down on the table.
- One person picks up a card from the pile, taking care not to let anyone else see it.
- The other players have to work out what is written on the card.
- The reader of the card should give correct answers but not give the game away.

After each member of the group has read a card make a list of what you know about questioning.
